Why Russia Asks A Loan? According to a London newspaper, Russian scientists discovered the "main secret" of the atomic bomb fully six months ago. It cites a Russian scientific publication, dated last March, as proof.

Whether or not the United States, Great Britain and Canada alone hold this tremendously important secret, it is no secret that Russian emissaries have already approached our State department for a It's just as simple as can be. loan said to be six billion dollars.

President Truman, who will shortly suggest to Congress measures With excess energies that come for the use of atomic energy, and states that he and not the cabinet will In stuff that's called plutonium, decide what the recommendations shall be, has said the initial cost of And one-that's bound to bother the atomic bomb was two billion dollars.

If Russia, on her own hook, is now to complete the development of this revolutionary weapon and its manufacture, where is the money Inthorium, 'tis learned, men find coming from? Russia wants those billions from us for "reconstruction." Atoms of the explosive kind, Does that term include the atomic bomb, asks the Philadelphia Inquirer. Kentuckians Seek To Cast Off Restraints

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 26. Under Kentucky's present state constitution, every public office holder, high and low, is required to take an oath that he has never fought a duel or acted as a second. Another provision limits all state salaries to

From these and other outmoded restraints, Kentuckians are now trying to free themselves. They want to throw off the shackles of a past that is rich in sentimental tradition but poor in material accomplishment.

As those in the lead of the movement are discovering, it is not easy. Tradition rides heavy. Getting a new constitution is a cumbersome and difficult business.
